Blurbs, Introductions, Afterwords

- The Tale of Princess Fatima* (trans. Melanie Magidow, Penguin Classics) (blurb) Aug. 2021
- “The iron Valkyrie Princess Fatima joins a whole cast of female champions out for blood and honor in this fluidly translated epic that is part battlefield saga, part chanson de geste, part family drama, and all heroine’s journey, one worthy of inclusion with the great warrior women classics.”
- Barra and Zaman: Reading Egyptian Modernity in Shadi Abdel Salam’s The Mummy* Dec. 2020
(Youssef Rakha, Palgrave Macmillan) (blurb)
- “Egyptian novelist Youssef Rakha captures the personal relationship with art that lies beneath all scholarly endeavor, but which too often gets lost in academic analysis. The aphoristic prose recalls Derrida and the sad-faced irony of Vonnegut is never far away. Nezar Andary’s foreword adds to the effect by calling up veils and cocoons to imagine how audiences get ‘wrapped up’ in cinema. A thoughtful and moving work of creative nonfiction.”
